Forward-looking statements

This Annual Report contains forward-looking statements that involve risks and uncertainties. Actual results may differ materially from those anticipated. See Item 1A.

Item 1. Business

JPMorgan Chase & Co. is a leading financial services firm with operations worldwide, serving consumers and small businesses, and corporate, institutional and government clients under its J.P. Morgan and Chase brands.

Segments

Net interest income. Higher balances in card services and deposit margin, partly offset by lower rates are the main drivers of this segment's results.

Noninterest revenue. Higher investment banking fees and asset management fees, and markets revenue are the main drivers of this segment's results.

Competition

The Firm competes with other banks, broker-dealers, asset managers, fintech companies and payment networks on price, product breadth, technology and service. Non-bank competitors are often subject to less regulation.

Seasonality and government regulation

Investment banking and markets revenue tend to be seasonally stronger in the first half of the year. The Company is subject to laws and regulations in the jurisdictions in which it operates, including those relating to competition, consumer protection, data privacy, trade, taxation, employment and the environment. Compliance costs are significant and changes in law could affect results.

Human capital

At fiscal year end the Company had approximately 893,000 full-time equivalent employees. The Company's compensation programs include share-based awards for a broad group of employees.

Available information

The Company's annual reports on Form 10-K, quarterly reports on Form 10-Q, current reports on Form 8-K and amendments are available free of charge on its investor relations website as soon as reasonably practicable after they are filed with the SEC.

Item 1A. Risk Factors

The following discussion summarises the material factors that make an investment in the Company's securities speculative or risky. It is not exhaustive.

Credit, market and liquidity risk. The Firm's results depend on the credit quality of its borrowers, the level and shape of the yield curve, and its ability to fund itself in stressed markets.

Regulatory and capital requirements. Changes to the Basel III endgame rules, GSIB surcharges and stress testing could require the Firm to hold more capital and constrain distributions.

Operational and cyber risk. The Firm processes large volumes of transactions and is a target for cyber attacks; a significant failure could result in losses, fines and reputational harm.

Litigation and conduct. The Firm is subject to numerous legal proceedings and investigations, the outcomes of which are uncertain.

Item 5. Market for Registrant's Common Equity, Related Stockholder Matters and Issuer Purchases of Equity Securities

The Company's common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol JPM. As of January 20, 2026 there were approximately 53,000 shareholders of record.

The Company paid quarterly cash dividends of $1.25 per share during the year. Future dividends are subject to declaration by the Board of Directors.

Total net revenue for 2025 increased 3.4% to $132.7 billion from $128.3 billion in the prior-year period. Net income was $42.2 billion compared with $40.9 billion, and diluted earnings per share were $15.10 compared with $14.49.

Segment results

Noninterest revenue revenue was $60.1 billion, up 6.1% compared with $56.6 billion in the prior-year period, reflecting higher investment banking fees and asset management fees, and markets revenue.

Expenses, credit costs and capital

Noninterest expense was $73.8 billion; the managed overhead ratio was 55%. The provision for credit losses was $4.8 billion. The Firm's CET1 ratio was 15.4% and tangible common equity $263.2 billion at period end.

Fiscal years prior to the three years presented in Item 8 are derived from previously issued financial statements; per-share amounts reflect subsequent stock splits.

Item 7A. Quantitative and Qualitative Disclosures About Market Risk

The Firm's market risk arises from trading and non-trading activities. Value-at-risk for the CIB trading portfolio averaged $52 million during the year at a 95% confidence level. A 100 basis point parallel increase in rates would increase net interest income by approximately $1.9 billion over twelve months.
